

20 DEC 2024

I've been in Helena for 5 yrs... I saw him around library, Gold Bar, Wells Fargo. Finally
I walked up and sat down.
From then on I would scream "David!" everytime I saw him and we would talk about water poems and gregorian chant
He was a faux grandfather to me

I remember seeing the book guy with the tie hat in my earliest memories of Helena. I was infatuated with him - wanting to someday be like him. He felt magical to me. When I grew up, we became friends and bonded over art and mysticism. I remember him telling me he was a duvid reincarnated. Believing he will come back in another life gives me comfort.

Love you David

I got to speak to David just once & it was in my first visit to the museum (about a week before his passing) The conversation went from me being new to UST to his travels in Europe & specific locations he visited that sounded very interesting. He had such an high vocabulary that ~~it~~ he made me feel incompetent but, simultaneously, it motivated me, because I love learning. I'm glad I had the privilege to speak to him at least once.)
