

David was so smart and intellectual, yet kind and unassuming, people loved talking with him or more to the point, listening to him.

David,

Thanks for being one of Helena's most enduring characters.

When a town loses one of its characters, it loses a bit of its character.

We'll miss you!

Lynne

David played a founding role in the creation of the Mead + Read events. I always enjoyed the wit, literature + humor he brought to the event + his love of Mead! :)

One of my last conversations with David was after my lecture. He came up to me crying and thanked me for caring about art so much.

David is like the embodiment of the Alexandrian library: full of obscure references to long-forgotten scholars that we all should really remember!
